

Should Corporations Have the Same Rights as Persons?

David Cobb and Jan Edwards

ARMED WITH THE LEGAL STATUS OF PERSONS, corporations have more rights than human beings. Corporate free speech allows virtually unlimited corporate financial contributions to political parties and candidates. The Fourth Amendment protects corporations from random inspections to see if they are mistreating workers or polluting. The list goes on and on.

Don't miss this important opportunity to learn about corporate personhood. On Friday night Edwards and Cobb will talk about what corporate personhood is, how corporations got constitutional rights, and why this is such a crucial issue to democracy. This talk will be the grounding for the next day's workshop, which will focus on Strategies and Actions to Abolish Corporate Personhood. Learn what other communities are doing and what can be done locally.

David Cobb is a Texas lawyer who recently relocated to Eureka. He is the Campaigns Director for ReclaimDemocracy.org and serves as the General Counsel for the Green Party of the United States. He works closely with Democracy Unlimited of Humboldt County and the program on Corporations, Law & Democracy (POCLAD).

Jan Edwards lives in Point Arena and is on the leadership team for the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom's 'Abolish Corporate Personhood' campaign. She is co-founder of the Redwood Coast Alliance for Democracy and worked on the successful Resolution on Corporate Personhood in Point Arena.
